

ABSTRACT

In order to provide a network node using an IP telephony signalling protocol, such as SIP, with service reference information needed for billing purposes, for example, the service reference information is added to an IP telephony signalling protocol message and the IP telephony signalling protocol message is then sent to the network node.

(Figure 2)